Validity: The biometric passport is valid for 10 years. When it expires, it must be reissued. The validity of temporary passports is adapted to the purpose of travel, but does not exceed one year.

Processing time: The processing time of biometric passports is approximately 6 weeks. A provisional passport can usually be issued on the day of the visit by the mission abroad, provided that jurisdiction is given and all necessary documents are available. If you are also registered in Germany or outside the respective official district, the mission abroad may have to obtain authorization from the competent passport authority before issuing a passport. This will extend the processing time of your application and an additional fee will be charged.

Pickup: You can pick up your passport in person on Monday, Tuesday or Thursday between 2 and 3 pm. Please bring your previous passport with you, which will be returned to you upon request (e.g. because of still valid endorsements) after it has been cancelled by the passport office. You can also authorize another person in writing to pick up your passport.

Nationality: The diplomatic mission abroad points out that neither the German passport nor the German identity card alone clearly prove possession of German nationality and reserves the right to carry out a more detailed check in cases of doubt. If necessary, the applicant must prove the existence of German citizenship - for example, by presenting a current certificate of citizenship.

Note: If both the German parents and their child were born outside Germany after 01.01.2000, the filing of a birth notification is a prerequisite for the transfer of German citizenship to the child (and thus the application for a German identity document). Please also refer to the information on our website regarding the non-acquisition of German citizenship in the case of birth abroad.
